"Assisted Suicide"

A Cruel Disregard for Human Life

Canada's history with "medical assistance in dying" (MAID) is a good reason for lawmakers to reject "assisted suicide." <https://tinyurl.com/5n728p23>

- MAID in Canada was promoted as a last resort for terminally ill patients suffering from incurable pain. But in the space of just a few years, assisted dying has been made available to pretty much anyone who is struggling with an illness or a disability. Even Canadians facing homelessness and poverty are feeling compelled to end their lives, rather than 'burden' the authorities.
- In 2023, a bill that would have expanded MAID to include mental illness was narrowly defeated in a vote of 167 to 150. Canada will revisit this in 2027.
- In 2016, 79% of Canadians supported MAID in limited circumstances. In 2023, only 30% of Canadians now support MAID.
- In 2021, 35.7% of MAID patients said that they believed themselves to be a 'burden on family, friends or caregivers.'
- In 2022, in Quebec, the first province to legalize euthanasia, a shocking 8% of all deaths were attributed to MAID.
- MAID offers both euthanasia (doctor ending a patient's life with a lethal injection) and assisted suicide (giving the patient the means to end his own life).
- Many Canadians seek MAID due to the absence of palliative care and the long waiting list for healthcare.
- In roughly 5 years, there have been 428 failures to comply with Canada's MAID law, yet not a single case has been reported to the police. <https://tinyurl.com/29wx6sky>

Belgium history with euthanasia is a good reason for lawmakers to reject "assisted suicide." <https://tinyurl.com/3znaztvp>

- By 2023, Belgium has seen euthanasia increase by 14,163% since it was legalized in 2002. That's a 15% increase! And with the "undeclared euthanasias," that figure could be much higher.
- Nearly 12% of all euthanasias were carried out on patients who were not expected to die in the short term.
- In 2023, 76.2% of Belgium euthanasias were administered to patients with both physical and psychological conditions which included personality disorders, depression, and Alzheimer's disease.

Netherlands history with euthanasia is a good reason for lawmakers to reject “assisted suicide.”

<https://tinyurl.com/4e4p8wty>

- A new law in the Netherlands went into effect on February 1, 2024 that allows parents to euthanize children between the ages of 1 and 12 even when the children do not want to be euthanized.
- On February 5, 2024, after being married for 65 years, the former Dutch Prime Minister, Dries van Agt, and his wife Eugenia van Agt-Krekelberg, were euthanized together, leaving behind 3 children and 7 grandchildren. It was unclear what ailments Eugenia was suffering from other than fear of being left alone. <https://tinyurl.com/yt3mt3ef>

- 282 people with dementia and 115 with psychological disorders requested to be euthanized in 2023. <https://tinyurl.com/3v8ej9jh>

Oregon’s history with “Death with Dignity” is a good reason for lawmakers to reject “assisted suicide.”

- Legalized in 1997, for the purpose of giving terminally ill people the ability to end their life, the most recent “Oregon report includes deaths due to anorexia, arthritis, arteritis, blood disease, complications from a fall, hernia, kidney failure, medical care complications, musculoskeletal system disorders, sclerosis, and stenosis.” <https://tinyurl.com/3me73aku>

Groups in favor of assisted suicide admit their end goal to expand it beyond the terminally ill.

- Massachusetts Death with Dignity, J.M. Sorrell “...the hoops you have to go through to get medical aid in dying. Once you get something passed, you can always work on amendments later, so I’m working to be patient.” <https://tinyurl.com/yc78n2tk>
- Barbara Coombs Lee, former President of Compassion and Choices, regarding people with dementia, “It is an issue for another day but it is no less compelling.” <https://tinyurl.com/bde3c8hv>

Illinois lawmakers must NOT promote death as a cheaper, easier alternative to life’s struggles and forego their responsibility to vulnerable citizens.
